

Change to Verizon.net Email Policies:

The Verizon.net Email Policies have been removed from verizon.com/emailpolicy, and replaced with the notice below:

We no longer offer verizon.net email service, and have previously notified all verizon.net email customers of the need to immediately migrate their email to the AOL platform (to maintain their verizon.net email address) or a third party platform. Please see the Frequently Asked Questions at verizon.com/email for additional information.

All migrations must be completed before December 5, 2017.

After this date, any remaining verizon.net email accounts will be subject to deletion and will not be accessible in any way. This means:

- Any verizon.net email addresses not migrated to the AOL platform before December 5, 2017 will no longer be available for use.
- All verizon.net email, calendar and address book content not migrated to AOL or a third party before December 5, 2017 will be deleted from our systems.

Verizon.net email customers who have previously chosen Yahoo as their portal partner are not impacted by this change and may continue to maintain their verizon.net email address on the Yahoo platform, subject to their Terms of Service with Yahoo.
