

TELEPHONE SERVICE FOR EMPLOYEES

- A. No charge is made for local exchange service and touch calling line charges in connection with residence telephone service furnished to active employees of the Telephone Company for whom telephone service is considered essential in connection with operations of the Telephone Company and to pensioners of the Telephone Company.

Additional service is furnished to these employees at rates specified in "B" following:

- B. One-half the regular rate(s) is charged for local exchange service and touch calling line charges in connection with residence telephone service furnished to active employees other than those specified in "A" preceding, for whom service is considered an advantage in connection with operations of the Telephone Company.

Regular rates are charged for toll message service, foreign exchange service and all other services offered by the Company.

Employees for whom service is considered an advantage in connection with operations of the Telephone Company shall be required to complete a record of continuous service of one year before becoming eligible for the service described.

- C. Construction charges, specified in Section 4 of this tariff, apply for construction of facilities to furnish residence telephone service to employees and pensioners of this Company.
- D. Where more than one employee or pensioner or a combination thereof reside in the same household, a directory listing of each additional employee or pensioner will be provided without charge in lieu of a separate service for each.

Additional listings of the employee's or pensioner's family residing in the same household will be allowed subject to the regulations and the listing charges specified in Section 5 of this tariff.

- E. In the event of violation by an employee of tariff regulations or other abuse of the service, the Telephone Company may terminate the service.

- F. As of January 1, 2007, Telephone Service for Employees will no longer be made available to management employees hired after January 1, 2007; management employees who were not eligible for Telephone Service for Employees prior to January 1, 2007; management employees enrolled in Telephone Service for Employees who transfer, after January 1, 2007 to another Verizon business unit where Telephone Service for Employees benefits are not available. These eligibility changes do not affect union represented employees or retirees. (C)
