Long Distance Message Restriction

A. General

Long Distance Message Restriction is an arrangement which permits a Local Exchange Service line or communications system user to dial exchange area calls but prevents the origination of long distance calls and Audiotex calls. In addition, this arrangement denies the user access to "ZERO" (operator) dialing.

B. Regulations

1. Long Distance Message Restriction will be provided to communications systems from central offices which are equipped for such service. It is an arrangement whereby calls placed over trunks equipped with Long Distance Message Restriction are denied access to Long Distance Message Service and Audiotex calls.
2. The acceptance of incoming traffic and billing arrangements is not restricted by this arrangement.

C. Rates
