

3. Regulations for the Federal Government

3.1 Description

3.1.1	General
A.	Special construction provided to the Federal Government is subject to all regulations specified in Section 2 except that in lieu of a filed maximum termination liability period equal to the average account life of the specially constructed facilities, the maximum termination liability will be filed at ten-year intervals for the average account life of the facilities. In the event that the average account life of the facilities is not an even multiple of ten, the last increment filed will reflect the appropriate number of years remaining (e.g., seven years for plant with a 27-year life). Prior to the expiration of each liability period, the Federal Government has the following option. 1. Extend the use of the specially constructed facilities for the new liability period, or 2. Terminate the special construction case and pay the appropriate charges.
B.	The Telephone Company will notify the Federal Government six months in advance of the expiration date that the special construction case is subject to renewal. The Federal Government must provide the Telephone Company with written notification of termination, to be received one month prior to the expiration of the liability period. Failure to do so, and payment of the next month's service charges, will result in an extension of the special construction case for the next ten-year interval. 1. Continued Use of Special Construction— When the Federal Government elects to continue the case of special construction, a revised NRC, maximum termination liability, and maximum termination liability period will be filed. 2. Termination of the Use of Special Construction— When the Federal Government elects to terminate a case of special construction at or prior to the expiration of the current liability period, termination charges will apply. In order to comply with Federal Government regulations, a quotation charge will not apply when submitting unsolicited quotes or when submitting quotes in response to a general request for proposal or invitation to bid from agencies or branches of the Federal Government.
C.	In order to comply with Federal Government regulations, a quotation charge will not apply when submitting unsolicited quotes or when submitting quotes in response to a general request for proposal or invitation to bid from agencies or branches of the Federal Government.